As an online company, we are obliged to inform you as a consumer about the online dispute resolution platform (ODR platform) of the European Commission. This OS platform can be accessed via the following link: Online dispute resolution. However, we do not participate in dispute resolution proceedings before a consumer arbitration board.

As a content provider, Daiwa House Modular Europe is responsible for its “own content” made available for use on in accordance with Section 7 (1) of the German Telemedia Act. A distinction must be made between this own content and cross-references (“links”) to content provided by other providers. This third-party content was examined at the time of the initial linking to determine whether it might give cause for a possible civil or criminal liability. However, it cannot be prevented that the contents are subsequently changed by the respective providers. Daiwa House Modular Europe has not constantly checked the contents to which it refers to changes that could give rise to a new responsibility. Should you be of the opinion that the linked external pages violate applicable law or otherwise have inappropriate content, please let us know.
